Welcome back to the podcast and in today's session. We have a intermediate boxing workout. Now. If you haven't done the beginner boxing workout already, make sure you go and check that out first and complete that and then you can move on to this intermediate version. So all you need is a heavy bag gloves make sure your hands are wrapped as well. So there is no injuries. Also, make sure you get warmed up thoroughly. Obviously you guys know you can use the war.

I'm up Podcast to do that. But without further Ado once you have done all that a jump back in and let's get straight into this boxing session. So we are going to start off nice and simple today. So I want your on the heavy bag and when you're doing some Jabs and Crosses continuous, so one two, one two, one two, that kind of pace. Okay, right we go in first round in three two one and let's go time started first round come to you as jab cross jab cross jab cross. Just getting them shoulders nice and warm.

Kelsey Lynn star asked. What is the ideal length of a stream if you're streaming three times a week as I've heard you suggest Kelsey streaming is really variable so it can it can be something that you do one hour once a week. It can be something that you do six or seven days a week for 10 hours at a time. It really just depends on your goals in the positions that you're in there's really no one size fits all system.

First off I want to say the people that need to be streaming 6 or 7 days a week for a ton of time are the people who are already the at the number one position in their directories. So if you are streaming Fortnight and you're like Ninja level, right, if you're the first most viewed stream you need to make sure that you are utilizing that position that you have as a Creator and one of the best ways that you can do that is by being live consistently because you know,

Focusing on promoting that stream vs. Streaming more and expecting people to just find you and this is the same for any type of content. It doesn't matter if it's streaming if it's YouTube videos podcasts or social media. You need to be spending your time with your boots on the ground the best analogy that I have for this is that whenever you are a smaller Creator and you don't have a ton of momentum you are a door-to-door Salesman. You need to take your content.

So they're going to have an August start to or August streaming debut. So having Hawkeye start in the in the fall like that keeps it totally on track for the fall 2021 release date. So I think I just think that Marvel Studios had a lot of learning to do with these shows because they've never done it before and I think the lesson that they learned is they have more time to get things done then what they thought and so I think we're just getting we're seeing things.

why or August start and now they've kind of moved it and I think what's happened here is like, you know, they started Juan division on November 4th, and they realize that they have plenty of time to get one division done edited put in the can and streaming for next December. So I think that they said like hey, we don't need to be in a huge rush and have all these balls in the air at one time because at one point it looked like it was going to be low-key Miss Marvel.
